The above editorial clipping from the Economist was handed to us, by one of our thoughtful citizens with the suggestion that we make it the basis of an advertisement. We adopt the suggestion because it emphasizes our proposition, to-wit: That a strong institution like the VIRGINIA TRUST COMPANY is better qualified to act as Executor and Trustee than an individual. The reasons are many, and we invite the opportunity of pointing out these advantages to any prudent man or woman interested in the matter.

Booklet on trusts sent free. In it are given some valuable information about higher prices on the proposition that supplies will fall below the requirements of a reawakened trade throughout the world. They argue that there will be a great pressure on this country for cotton, where about 75 per cent. of the world's crop is raised.

The frosts of Thursday night, they think, put the finishing touches on a wide extent of cotton country in the Southwest and destroyed the chances of a top crop. Bears insist that present high prices discount anything that can be said on the bull side.

Also, very large spot interests have been enormous sellers during the week, apparently against purchases of the actual crop at the South. Needless to say, it is at the moment an irregular, unsettled market, which keeps everybody on the qui vive. It is believed by cool-headed observers that the weather in the immediate future and

Review of Trade.

New York, October 25.—Bradstreet's to-morrow will say:

Retail demand for reorder trade with jobbers in seasonable lines has been quickened by the week's weather developments. Collections have shown a certain degree of improvement also, and are classed as fair to good, varying with the sections reporting. In iron and steel a fair business is doing, and the trade is directed there.

In cotton goods, firmness and a rather more optimistic feeling are noted as a result of a curtailment in production and a rise in all hands, and growth of belief in the permanence of present prices for raw material. In woollen dress goods demand is not greatly changed.

Men's wear worateads have sold better, and this has induced some further buying at wools advanced. The demand for hosiery has been lively. The leather trade products of the manufactories of Maryland during the year 1909 were of a value amounting to $1,700,000, as compared with a value of $243,376,000 in 1904. These are the figures as given in a report issued by the Bureau of Economic Warfare, and the increase in the value for the five-year period was 30 to 35 per cent. For the same period there was an increase of more than 12 per cent in the number of establishments; of more than 34 per cent in the capital employed, and of more than 10 per cent in the cost of the material used.

higher prices on the proposition that supplies will fall below the requirements of a reawakened trade throughout the world. They argue that there will be a great pressure on this country for cotton, where about 75 per cent. of the world's crop is raised.

The frosts of Thursday night, they think, put the finishing touches on a wide extent of cotton country in the Southwest and destroyed the chances of a top crop. Bears insist that present high prices discount anything that can be said on the bull side.

Also, very large spot interests have been enormous sellers during the week, apparently against purchases of the actual crop at the South. Needless to say, it is at the moment an irregular, unsettled market, which keeps everybody on the qui vive. It is believed by cool-headed observers that the weather in the immediate future and Collections have shown a certain degree of improvement also, and are classed as fair to good, varying with the sections reporting. In iron and steel a fair business is doing, and the trade is directed there. In cotton goods, firmness and a rather more optimistic feeling are noted as a result of a curtailment in production and a decline in all hands, and growth of belief in the permanence of present prices for raw material. In woollen dress goods demand is not greatly changed. Men's wear worateads have sold better, and this has induced some further buying at wools advanced. The demand for hosiery has been lively. Visible Cotton Supply.

New Orleans, La., October 23.—Secretary Hester's statement of the world's visible supply of cotton, as of October 22, shows the total visible to be 3,020,138 bales, against 2,745,469 last week, and 3,716,333 last year. In this the total of the United States is 1,955,425 last week, and 1,955,425 last week, and 3,901,383 last year, and of all other kinds, including Egypt, 1,064,713 last week, and 412,000 last year. Of the world's visible supply of cotton, the United States has 66 per cent, Great Britain
is now ahead and has 15 per cent, France
11 per cent, Germany 10 per cent, India
9 per cent, Japan 8 per cent, and the United States 1,107,000, and against 1,368,000 last year.

Maryland Shows Increase.
Washington, D. C., October 23.—The Federal Census Bureau has announced that the population of Maryland has increased since 1900 by 100,000, and is now 1,100,000.
The increase is due to a combination of factors, including a high birth rate, a low
death rate, and a large influx of immigrants.
The population of the State in 1900 was 1,000,000, and in 1910 it was 1,100,000.
The increase is the largest of any State in the Union, and is due to a combination of
factors, including a high birth rate, a low
death rate, and a large influx of immigrants.

products of the manufactories of Maryland during the year 1909 were of a value amounting to $1,700,000, as compared with a value of $243,376,000 in 1904. These are the figures as given in a report issued by the Bureau of Economic Warfare, and the increase in the value for the five-year period was 30 to 35 per cent. For the same period there was an increase of more than 12 per cent in the number of establishments; of more than 34 per cent in the capital employed, and of more than 10 per cent in the cost of the material used.
